Hello David,

With the Local Government Act. When a candidate nominates they are required to put the name and address on any advertising. With the internet and the concern for privacy, can this be reviewed If it was changed, a candidate may not be going against the act by omitting address details on advertising. I would expect all relevant information would be required on the application.

With the cemetery renewal at Karrakatta, I understand the process except for what is done with the headstones. Historically they have been dumped, however they are an important link to the past for family and information. It would be helpful to the families and research people if they were stored and accessible.
